We have, on the contrary, in Africa races of men which are naturally warlike, and which are of no use to us. Algeria and Tunis compel us to keep there 100,000 mon, who, should any complication arise in Europe, would be of great value to us. Would it not be better to replace our troops by native ones? General Molière estimated in 1845 that 200,000 or 300,000 men could be obtained for the Army in Algiers." The Debats concludes as follows:-"If the future of France, as we firmly believe, lies in Africa, it would be a fortunate thing if on the French coast of the Mediterranean a first experiment could be made. The similarity of the climate and the nature of the soil might convert the province into a sort of link between France and Northern Africa."

ANOTHER CANAL SCHEME.

Yet another Canal is heard of, making the fifth or sixth to occupy the restless . ngineerin: energies of the age. A Mr. Grindred, of the firm of Messrs. Grindred, Jonkins and Co. of Colombo, is at present at Madras for purposes of interviewing Mr. Grant Duff on the subject of outting a canal through the island of Ramisaram, between the Gulf of Manaar and Park Straits. "He is said to be noting as the representative of capitalists at home, who are prepared to Januar subscribe the necessary capital for the work without any guarantee from the Indian Government. All they ask is a concession to carry out the project. It is estimated that the canal would save steamers from three to four days in the voyage from London to Madras and Calbutta and vice versa, and of course this means a saving in coal and other working orpanses of steamers. The channel it would take to execute the work. The scheme You Forgive Her?" in 1864; "The Belton cipal of a school should use his best discretion comprises the construction of dry docks on the

in the great Dutch show. This is satisfac- fire. tory as it displays a genuine desire on the part of the Chinese to take part in industrial exhibitions and to show to the work what they can do in the production of useful and beautiful works. This readiness to take part in such an exhibition, so far distant, is indeed better evidence of progressiveness than any acquisition of gunboats, improved arms, or an attempt at military reorganization could possibly be considered. The advantages to be obtained by exhibiting specimens of the art and industries of China Bre obvious, and have not failed to strike the practical Chinese mind. Moreover, the fact that the exhibition of Japanese productions in Europe and America has been the means of creating a large demand for their lacquered wares in those markets cannot have failed to reach China, and has created a laudable spirit of rivalry among the Chinese. The Chinese produce various articles which are excellent in their line and deci dedly characteristic, certain to excite attention and likely to create demand, though in general taste and finish of workmanship they are inferior to Japanese goods. At the same time Chinese wares have their distinctive merits, and will prove eminently attractive to the lovers of the curious and grotesque. That the effort now being made to secure a worthy representation of the products of the Central Kingdom at the Amsterdam Exhibition may prove completely successful we sincerely hope, so that the Chinese may be

EARTH. With what a glory breaks the dawn. Above the purple costern hills ! Each day the world answ is born, With all her thousand streams and rills, With all her vernal glens and woods Her mighty sea, her quiet lakes, Her stately mountain solitudes. Where mortal step no echo wakes * Oh, what a varied language swells

From out her broad, harmonious breast! Her tongue of life and grandour tells Of joy and hearty, peace and rest. On every side her music flows, On every side her charms are seen, From icy Winter's frosts and snows . To golden Summer's shades of green. No power profance her voice sublime.

-No stain her growing beauty mars,-As in the azure dome of Time She smiles among the sister stars. O man, thou child of mortal birth, Thou child of sorrow and of fear, He whose broad arm upholds the earth Is not unmindful of thy tear! ERNEST W. SHURTLEFF
